Many Hear Colonel Edgar's Address on the Great Lieutenant.

CHARLOTTE C. H., VA., April 17.—Under the auspices of the H. A. Carrington Chapter of the U. D. C. of this place, Colonel George M. Edgar, of Lexington, Ky., delivered his classic lecture on the life and character of Stonewall Jackson before a large and select audience of local citizens. The lecture was delivered in the courthouse, which had been rendered historic by the utterances of Patrick Henry, John Randolph, Judge Bouillon and other distinguished Virginians, and the burning words that fell from the lips of the distinguished speaker of this occasion were fully in keeping with the honored ground on which he stood.

The ladies of the Chapter here, which was only organized a few months ago, are doing a patriotic work, and the Chapter is growing and thriving beyond the utmost anticipations. The beautiful decorations of the building, the large number of ladies present, the elegant refreshments that were provided for the "inner man," all went to show how thoroughly in earnest the ladies are in this work, and to render the occasion most enjoyable from the entertainment, which will be devoted to the enlargement of the work of the Chapter.

People Seen in Public Places

of the Exposition, came up from his home in Norfolk yesterday, and is at the Jefferson.

Mr. Lowenberg is here to press the work of putting the finishing touches on the rehabilitated hostelry, which he is confident will be open to the public in all its departments by May 1st.

Although the opening of the Jamestown Exposition is one week off, all the hotels are crowded, and are expecting to be overcrowded from now on. Every incoming train carries large batches of visitors into the lobbies and the clerks are kept busy night and day assigning them rooms and keeping up with arrivals and departures. The reservations for next week at all the city hotels indicate heavy travel to Jamestown, and the greatest imaginable rush is anticipated.

It is apparent that early that a great number of persons will attend the exposition in the day and return to Richmond at night, as it will be impossible for the hotels in and around Norfolk to take care of all the visitors, unless all present signs fall. Not only is this true, but it is expected that the available rooms in boarding and apartment houses will be utilized, and several of the hotels are already looking around for quarters for those they will be unable to accommodate.

The Confederate Reunion, the Episcopal General Convention and scores of other bodies that will assemble here from time to time during the year will swell the presence of visitors heavily, and in addition to the usual hordes of tourists who pass to and from the Jamestown Exposition. Detectives have their eyes open for the line of crooks who usually follow great crowds, and they are looking out for the railway stations, hotel lobbies and other public places.

T. P. Trigg, of Abingdon; Mrs. Charles Friend and Mrs. R. H. Murray, of South Boston, are registered at the Jefferson.

Mr. William T. Wilson, chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Pittsylvania county, and Mr. James P. Acree, of Danville, were in the city yesterday. Mr. Acree, who is a member of the enthusiastic baseball roster, incidentally rooted for Danville yesterday afternoon, and Mr. Wilson, who is not much of a baseball player, was in the city for a long time.

The business of these gentlemen, however, was to see the Governor and the Highway Commissioner, and to discuss the good roads in Pittsylvania county. They want a few convicts to help build a macadam sample road from Danville to the county seat, for which both Danville and the county have already provided a considerable fund. Messrs. Wilson and Acree had a lengthy interview with the Governor, and they are stopping at Murphy's.

"The fight for the Democratic nomination for State Senator in the Seventeenth District to succeed Hon. John S. Chapman, of Greene, is growing warm," said a prominent citizen of Albemarle, at Murphy's last night. Messrs. Lindsay and Early have both issued cards outlining their platforms and appealing to the voters to support them. It looks to me as though Early will win.

There are several candidates from Albemarle and Charlottesville, and although Greene had the Senator for a long time, it looks as if she will land it again. Mr.
